

SCRAPBOOKING

one month at a time

with Tami Taylor

June

A few facts (from Wikipedia.org):

- June is the month with the longest daylight hours of the year (northern hemisphere) and shortest daylight hours of the year (southern hemisphere). Seems like a good reason to document a day in your life. Even if you've already don't this, it's always a great way to get more 'you' on a page.. and no two days are exactly alike right?
- Some say the name of June comes from a Latin word that means "Younger Ones". Who is a younger one to you? A younger sibling, a child, whoever it is, think of one thing that person has taught you.

Did you know?

June's birthstone is the pearl. The pearl symbolizes Purity, Harmony and Humility. Pearls are very interesting, especially considering that true natural pearls that are created without intervention by man are extremely rare, and happen by accident. Most pearls are created by human intervention where humans add a foreign substance (usually a piece of tissue from a donor shell) to the shell. Imagine that, a foreign unwanted substance is added to the shell, the shell in turn creates this beautiful mineral. Think back on your life, is there a time when something was forced on you, something you didn't care for; but in the end it made you a better person?

By the Numbers:

Layouts finished: _____

Fathers Kissed: _____

Flags Waved: _____

Lazy Days of Summer: _____

Water Fights: _____

Photos of Dad's Hands: _____

JUNE favorites

moment: _____

activity: _____

event: _____

thing: _____

